

Bart Baks

I am a dedicated, creative and communicative qualitative researcher in the field of various anthropological issues.
I am a real bridge builder with an unwavering interest in society and in people: why do they do what they do? Gaining insight into this together with a team and thus making the invisible visible for all parties involved is what I like to do most.

Relevant experience for the position

Government experience and broad social interest

I have more than 10 years of experience with municipalities, NGOs and universities. I know what is going on in society, I am broadly oriented and I understand the interests of various stakeholders.

Experience with qualitative research

I am passionate about qualitative research methods and have experience with, among other things, participant observation, focus groups, in-depth interviews and oral history.

Making contact with various parties

In my various positions I have made contact with very diverse parties, such as scientists, entrepreneurs, NGO experts, activists, civil servants. I know how to reach, convince and connect people.
